the bridesmaid bouquets

The bridesmaids carried hand-tied bouquets of garden flowers that were wrapped in navy and white nautical ribbon.

the welcome boxes

Ashlee's friends helped her make care packages for out-of-town guests, which were handed out upon arrival. Inside were bottles of water labeled with the couple's name, popcorn and several other goodies, including a schedule of events and a map of the area.

their story

When Timothy Hidell (25 and a mortgage broker) proposed to his college girlfriend Ashlee Reed (now 25 and a realtor and marketing manager), it seemed everyone was in on his master plan—everyone but Ashlee. He told her parents and then enlisted the help of the ladies who work at Winterthur, a historic du Pont estate in the Brandywine Valley, where he had arranged for a private holiday tour. Once the tour was underway, the couple's guide discreetly slipped away so Timothy could propose atop the property's signature spiral staircase. Ashlee was so overwhelmed, the last thing she wanted to do was finish the tour. For their wedding, they chose Rehoboth Beach Yacht & Country Club, where Ashlee had spent a large portion of her childhood and had always dreamed of getting married. —Jennifer Tzeses >>

the ceremony décor

White daisy pomanders hung from a navy and white ribbon on the first chair in each row.

the formalwear

The bridesmaids donned tissue taffeta, A-line knee length dresses by Amsale in peony pink. Ashlee gave each one a pearl bracelet with an embossed starfish clasp as a gift.

the ceremony programs

The cover of the ceremony programs had a navy floral fern print along with the couple's names and wedding date. Each was tied with peony pink ribbon. >>

the centerpieces

Arrangements of pink garden flowers in vases lined with patterned paper echoed the flowers in the bride's bouquet.

the first dance

The newlyweds chose "Can't Take My Eyes Off of You" by Frankie Valli for their first dance because it reminded them of Jersey Boys, which they had seen on Broadway just before they got engaged.
